Post-Medieval Seafaring Anthropology 629

Instructor: Dr. Kevin Crisman

The Office in Exile: 138 Read Building (Kyle Field Basement), ☎ 979-845-6696

Office hours: Tuesday and Thursday, 1-4 or by appointment

This course examines archaeological and historical sources to chronicle and explore the development of shipbuilding, seafaring practices, world exploration, waterborne trade and economic systems, and naval warfare in Europe and around the world (except the Americas) from the fifteenth century to the beginning of the twentieth century. Archaeological studies of shipwrecks, ships' equipment, and cargoes provide a focal point for investigating change and continuity in the maritime sphere over five centuries.

Prerequisites: Anth 615 and 616 or instructor approval.

ANTH 629 Post Medieval Seafaring Course Requirements

1. Seminar Presentations and Discussions (50% of final grade)

During the semester each student will choose several topics to research and present in class (the number of presentations you make will depend upon the size of the class). Presentations should be around one-half hour in length, try to keep within this time limit. Please prepare and distribute a bibliography of the sources consulted for your seminar presentation (Note: this is part of your presentation grade, so make sure 1) You prepare a bibliography; 2) It has your name on it; and 3) Your professor gets a copy). Use of visual aids such as slides, photocopied handouts, Powerpoint™ projections, chalkboard illustrations, or interpretive dances is strongly encouraged.

Seminar presentations will be graded on the basis of their thoroughness, organization, and clarity, as well as their inclusion of illustrations (where appropriate) and the distribution of a bibliography of sources consulted in preparing the presentation.

2. Term Paper (50% of final grade)

In addition to the seminar presentations, each student will research and write a professional, publishable-quality term paper on some aspect of post-medieval seafaring. The first step, after selecting a topic and researching sources, will be to prepare a four page “term paper proposal” modeled on a thesis proposal; in the proposal you will state the nature and importance of the question, discuss previous research and potential sources, outline your plan for analysis of the topic, and summarize the significance of the proposed research. A separate bibliography of primary and secondary sources that you intend to use in preparing the term paper must be included. The term paper proposal is due by 5 p.m. on Tuesday, February 5, 2013.

The optimal length for a term paper is 20-25 pages of text (12-point font, double spaced), although papers of a greater or lesser length will be accepted (note: longer does not necessarily mean better!). The paper must adhere to the requirements and recommendations provided in my “Guidelines for Writing Your Term Paper” handout. The paper is to be submitted on or before 5 p.m., Friday, May 3, 2013. Submitting your paper after this date will result in a lower grade.

My term paper grading criteria are as follows: (“A”) research, analysis, writing, and citation are professional and with minimal editing the paper could be published as a journal article or book chapter; (“B”) paper is good in most respects, but due to shortcomings in one or more areas would require significant editing before publication would be possible; (“C”) paper is at lowest levels of acceptability, and would require major new research or re-writing to achieve publishable standards; (“D”) paper falls below lowest levels of acceptability in research, analysis, writing, and citation; (“F”) paper fails to meet all professional standards, or the professor has found evidence of plagiarism.

☞ Please note: Because I read term papers carefully, I read them slowly. It is possible that I may not be able to read your paper and grade it before the deadline to turn in Spring, 2013 grades (May 13); if this occurs you will receive a temporary “Incomplete” until the paper is graded and I submit a “Change of Grade” form. Do not be alarmed by an “Incomplete” unless you failed to turn in your paper. If for some reason you need to get the final grade on your TAMU transcripts by the end of the semester (for job or graduate school applications, for example), please let me know on or before the due date and I will move your paper to the top of the pile.

The final grade: 50% class presentations/participation and 50% term paper.
